Definition of Experiential Learning

Lansing Community College is in agreement that learning outside the classroom is valid. Therefore, it is the College's function to assess extra-institutional learning and experience as part of its credentialing responsibility.

The American Council on Education points out that the American society abounds in resources for learning at the post-secondary level. Public, private, and proprietary educational institutions exercise the central but not the exclusive responsibility for instruction and learning. Associations, businesses, government, industry, the military, and unions, sponsor instruction. In addition, independent study and reading, work experiences, the mass media, and the social interaction contribute to learning and competency. The American Council on Education also notes "full and effective use of all educational resources is a worthy educational and social goal."

Provisions & Fee in Effect for All Experiential Learning Applications

Procedures

Relevant aspects of personal and professional experience gained through actual job-related activities and special training experiences may be applied to an academic program. These experiences may be translated into academic credit provided they are directly related to the learning outcomes of a course relative to the program of study or degree being pursued at Lansing Community College. These experiences must have been obtained from a non-academic source not otherwise available for academic credit through the transfer process.

Any student that has been admitted to Lansing Community College may apply for experiential learning credit by obtaining the Experiential Learning application from the Registrar's Office (Gannon Building) or by calling (517) 483-1200. Before submitting a completed application, a student should contact the Academic Division from which the credit is being sought. The purpose of this preliminary contact is to provide the student with an explanation as to how the process takes place. A student should then submit the completed Experiential Learning Application, along with the supporting documents and the $150.00 processing fee to Student Finance. The student must also attest by his or her signature, that all information submitted is true and correct to the best of their knowledge.

Documentation

The student must document and provide evidence of all experiential learning experiences. It is the student's responsibility to keep a copy of all documents contained in his or her application. The purpose of the documentation is to substantiate that a student's knowledge and/or experience equates to specific Lansing Community College course(s). Documentation submitted to Lansing Community College becomes the property of the institution and will not be returned to the student. Documentation may be defined as, but not limited to, complete job descriptions, copies of course materials and outlines, certificates, training reports, signed supervisory verifications and evaluations on letterhead, and any other descriptive information that may provide a clear understanding of a student's background and competencies. Lansing Community College requires certification that the work or training experience is the student's own. The College will retain the experiential learning application all supporting documents.

Assessment of Application

The Registrar's Office will forward the completed Experiential Learning Application and supporting documents to the respective Academic Division. The division will assign the application to an appropriate and impartial assessor for review and credit assessment. Assessors, composed of a cross-section of faculty and administrators, have the responsibility for evaluation and assignment of academic credit for experiential learning. In the evaluation process, the assessor will verify the accuracy and validity of the information stated on the Experiential Learning Application and supporting documents, by contacting various references and former employers whose names have been provided. If all is in order, the committee member will determine whether the student's experiential learning fits into appropriate competency and subject areas within the student's educational program (curriculum). The respective divisions of Lansing Community College must state the assignment of credit in terms of equivalent courses which are offered. Whenever credit is sought from more than one division, the process will be completed on a division by division basis. After completion of the evaluation by the first division, the Registrar's Office will forward the application to the next division. For each division granting credit, there will be a credit authorization form approved by the respective dean.

Applicability of Credit

The Academic Division will determine what credit granted can be applied to the student's program. In determining whether it is appropriate to accept a student's experiential learning for credit, the major considerations should be the student's educational objective and extra-institutional learning achievement. The assessor will determine from documentation submitted the courses for which the student can be granted experiential learning credit. Credit for experiential learning will be recorded on a student's official transcript and on the basis of a course by course equivalency and shall be prominently identified as credit for experiential learning.

A maximum of forty-five (45) semester hours of experiential learning may be applied towards a Lansing Community College associate degree. Fifteen (15) credits toward the curriculum must be earned in attendance at Lansing Community College to comply with the College's residency requirement for graduation.

Lansing Community College's decision to award credit for experiential learning does not obligate any other institution to accept such credit in transfer. Receiving institutions reserve the right to assess transcripts of incoming students and award credit as they see fit. Credit received based on experiential learning may not be used for financial aid or veteran's benefits eligibility. LCC does not accept transfer credit for experiential learning at other institutions.

Student Appeal Procedures

Students who believe the evaluation of their experiential learning is incorrect may file a written appeal to the dean of the division from which credit is being sought. Appeals must be received within six (6) weeks from the date the credit authorization was assessed. In such instances, the Dean will conduct a procedural review to ensure that the student was treated in a fair and non-discriminatory manner. The decision of the Dean shall be final.
