Demystifying End of Life Conversations

Susan Sefansky, LMSW, ACSW

November 13, 2018
10:00 AM - 4:00 PM

Talking about death often provokes discomfort, anxiety, and fear. This training will provide an opportunity to explore issues surrounding death, the business of death, funerals and rituals, and end-of-life conversations. We will examine these components of death, enabling you to increase your comfort level in conversations with clients, to better advocate, and to understand how the grief trajectory may be influenced by events that do or do not happen at the time of death.

Note: Community Mental Health staff responsible for PASRR evaluations are eligible for reimbursement (to their agency) for the costs of attending this workshop, using the regular PASRR billing process through the MDHHS QMP, OBRA Section.

Presenter

Susan Sefansky, LMSW, ACSW

Clinical Social Worker. Retired University of Michigan Health Systems Social Work Program Manager, Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office.

Attendees of Susan Sefansky's previous workshops say:

- ❖ The presenter and all of the materials were excellent - references were awesome.
- ❖ I very much appreciate Susan's level of expertise and the realization that seminars like this MUST be a conversation. It was lovely.
- ❖ What a great presentation and great presenter! Thank you for all of this amazing information, Susan. Wish I would have known.....
- ❖ The most important class I have attended this year.
- ❖ Great! A hard topic to think about, but very informative and eye opening.
- ❖ Wonderful references, insight, and professional experience communicated. Great conversation with audience.
