Health Care and Financial Decisions: Who Decides?

Roxanne J. Chang, JD, MS, LLP,
Elder Care Attorney

August 21, 2020
1:00 PM - 4:00 PM EDT

If an individual is incapacitated or unable to participate in health care or financial decisions, who is authorized to make which decisions? How do we preserve and honor the individual's choices and preferences? The presenter will discuss options for health care decision making, including health care powers of attorney, living wills, do-not-resuscitate orders, family consent and guardianship; and for financial decision making, including durable powers of attorneys, trusts, representative payees, and conservatorship.

This presentation is intended for a multi-disciplinary audience.

Note: Community Mental Health staff responsible for PASRR evaluations may be eligible for reimbursement (to their agency) for the cost of attending this workshop. Please contact MDHHS OBRA office for approval.

Presenter

Roxanne J. Chang, JD, MS, LLP

Roxanne specializes in the areas of elder care, special needs planning, and probate and estate planning. She is also a limited licensed psychologist with a graduate certificate in gerontology. Ms. Chang has experience in behavioral modification and treatment; training and education for health care professionals; advocacy for persons with dementia and developmental disabilities and other individuals with special needs; and elder mediation and conflict resolution coaching. She is an instructor at Eastern Michigan University's Aging Studies program and University of Michigan's School of Social Work, teaching dementia care and elder and special needs law.
